

We were driving to nowhere – 80s Love Song

When those down the air was warm,
Your voice was in the wind
The radio played something soft,
We didn't think of when
The city lights were far away,
The road was all new
We never asked where we would go,
Just stayed inside the view
We were driving to nowhere
But it felt like everything
Every mouse getting closer
To a place we could in me
If I close my eyes and then now
Did this sunlight in your head
Forever lives inside me
Like it's always waiting there
No mess, no signs, no reason
Why just moving through the night?
And in that quiet endless road,
Everything felt right
We didn't need a destination
We already had the moment
We were driving to nowhere
But it felt like everything
And I still hear that old song play it
In the way the silence sings
