

Redemption – Besomorph & Coopex

You say I make you nervous, a tragedy;
I'm a beautiful disaster, a reckoning
You wonder how I got this way
You think I'm someone to be saved,
Someone to clean up and tame
Oh somethings never change, never change, oh
You think I would look pretty on your arm
Once you cover up my bruises and battle scars
But it always ends the same
Can't bear the things I've had to face
Got you crying on your knees in pain
Oh somethings never change, never change, oh
You'll break your back to make me feel again
Suffocate to make me breathe again
Lose your mind from endless praying
Somethings never change, never change, oh
Redemption never came
I stopped asking for forgiveness cause you should know
Only fools tread where the angels fear to go
But you keep trying to get too close
Saved myself by turning into stone,
So save your judgment cause you just don't know
But somethings never change, never change, oh
They say I should feel guilty and change my ways
Leaving crumpled bodies in my wake
Swear I didn't mean to make them break
But they're so delicate and so mundane,
And they keep coming like a moth to flame
Oh somethings never change, never change, mm
You'll break your back to make me feel again
Suffocate to make me breathe again
Lose your mind from endless praying
Somethings never change, never change, oh
Redemption never came
