

Better Days – Dermot Kennedy

Better days are coming
If no one told you
I hate to hear you crying
Over the phone, dear
For seven years running
You've been a soldier
But better days are coming
Better days are coming for you
So when the night feels like forever
I'll remember what you said to me
I know you've been hurting
Waiting on a train that just won't come
The rain, it ain't permanent
And soon, we'll be dancing in the sun
We'll be dancing in the sun
And we'll sing your song together
And we'll sing your song together
We never miss the flowers
Until the sun's down
We never count the hours
Until they're running out
You're on the other side of the storm now
You should be so proud
And better days are coming
Better days are coming for you
So when the night feels like forever
I'll remember what you said to me
I know you've been hurting
Waiting on a train that just won't come
The rain, it ain't permanent
And soon, we'll be dancing in the sun
We'll be dancing in the sun
And we'll sing your song together
And we'll sing your song together
And we'll sing your song together
And we'll sing your song together

Your story's gonna change
Just wait for better days
You've seen too much of pain
Now, you don't even know
That your story's gonna change
Just wait for better days
I promise you, I won't let go
I know you've been hurting
Waiting on a train that just won't come
The rain, it ain't permanent
And soon, we'll be dancing in the sun
We'll be dancing in the sun
And we'll sing your song together
And we'll sing your song together
And we'll sing your song together
And we'll sing your song together
