

Religion – Lana Del Rey

Everything is fine now
Let sleeping dogs lay
All our minds made up now, all our beds are made
No one's out of time, no
Chips fall wherever they may
Leave it all behind, let the ocean wash it away

It never was about the money or the drugs
For you, there's only love
For you, there's only love
It never was about the party or the clubs
For you, there's only love

Cause you're my religion, you're how I'm living
When all my friends say I should take some space
Well I can't envision that for a minute
When I'm down on my knees, you're how I pray
Hallelujah, I need your love
Hallelujah, I need your love

Everything is bright now
No more cloudy days
Even when the storms come, in the eye we'll stay
No need to survive now
All we do is play
All I hear is music like Lay Lady Lay

It never was about the money or the drugs
For you, there's only love
For you, there's only love
It never was about the party or the clubs
For you, there's only love

Cause you're my religion, you're how I'm living
When all my friends say I should take some space
Well I can't envision that for a minute

When I'm down on my knees, you're how I pray
Hallelujah, I need your love
Hallelujah, I need your love

Cause you're my religion, you're how I'm living
When all my friends say I should take some space
Well I can't envision that for a minute
When I'm down on my knees, you're how I pray
Hallelujah, I need your love
Hallelujah, I need your love
