

Build me a house – rimon

Traveled all over the world
To get all the bricks
To get all the stones
But I just wanted you to know
That I ain't ready yet
Cause I want more
Always more
If you build me a house
I might run away
Cause there's places that I know my spirit
never stays
Never knew what home is
Do you know what home is
If you build me a house
I might run away
Cause there's places that I know my spirit
never stays
Never knew what home is
Do you what home is
I find comfort in discomfort, pretty strange
One moment I settle down, next second I want change
Coping mechanisms that always remained When you're used to self destruction, whose the one to blame?
I've known chaos all my life, so chaos is what I chase
My therapist told me, "RIMON, slow down your pace
You got plenty love to give, but now it's time to take
You deserve the white painted walls, the flowers in the hallway"
But I'd trade them all for the highway
Shook hands with all of my vices
Storm is loud for those who are quiet

Hope one day your love is requited
Cause you be too nice nice,
I be too rough rough
You be polite, lite, I just be stuck
Got rid of the backpack, loaded with rocks
Cause I can't frame a picture that ain't mine
Now you built me a house
And I ran away

Hope one day you'll understand why
I just couldn't stay
Hope I'll know what home is
But for now I'm homeless
Now you built me a house
And I ran away
For now, I'm homeless
