

Signal Lives On – Stillwave

Walking through the city lights again
Static in the air
Every street is whispering your name
But I know you're somewhere there
All the signals that I tried to find
Lost inside the noise
Turned to echoes in the silent night
Inside my own voice
Every broken frequency
Every fading tone
Was a message in the dark
Leading me back home
Now the signal's in the light
Shining through the night
Every echo leads me home
Through the silence and the sound
When the lost is finally found
And the signal lives on
All the highways, all the empty roads
All the nights alone
Every whisper on the radio
Was guiding me back home
I was searching in the distant stars
For a distant sign
But the signal that I couldn't find
Was always mine
Every broken frequency
Every fading tone
Was a message in the dark
Leading me back home
Now the signal's in the light
Shining through the night
Every echo leads me home
Through the silence and the sound
When the lost is finally found
And the signal lives on

No more shadows in the wire
No more voices in disguise
Every signal that I hear
Is the truth behind my eyes
Now the signal's in the light
Shining through the night
Every echo leads me home
Through the silence and the sound
When the lost is finally found
And the signal lives on
Signal lives on
